SE 445 : Information and Software Security

This course provides an introduction to the topic of security in the context of computer networks. The goals are to provide students with a foundation allowing them to identify, analyze, and solve network-related security problems in information systems with the emphasis on the engineering aspects of information security and software security issues.

Credits 3
Lab Hours 0
Lecture Hours 3
Tutoring Hours 0
Prerequisites
STA 212, SE 324