

LSR 423 : Integrative Life Science Research Seminar

LSR 423 course is designed to train students to summarize results obtained during student research project courses, built up scientific hypotheses and discuss their merits in group seminars with assessment of the subsequent self-directed learning in oral presentations, coursework or undergraduate thesis writing and defence. This course develops transferable skills, associated with analysis and presentation of laboratory-based experimental research in Life Sciences in the form of poster and podium presentation.

Credits 3

Prerequisites

BIO 357; BIO 358