

PPHYM 112 : Preparatory Physics for Medicine

This course is designed to give students a solid foundation in basic physics, as it relates to the human body, as a preparation for undergraduate studies. The covered material will include the basics of mechanics, thermodynamics, electricity and electromagnetism, and modern physics covering basic concepts of quantum physics, atomic nucleus and radioactivity.

Credits 3

Prerequisites

PAM 101